2nd opinion	confirm - A significant area of water in the 'BEFORE' image has been replaced by a large, light brown landmass in the 'AFTER' image, clearly indicating sea reclamation or coastal construction, and not a seasonal or tidal change, cloud, or agricultural activity.
Reasoning	The 'BEFORE' image shows a body of water adjacent to land. The 'AFTER' image reveals a significant expansion of land into the water, forming a large, engineered landmass with distinct boundaries. This change is characteristic of land reclamation or port expansion, both of which fall under coastal construction.
